

How Private is Your DNA?

Part of the 2014 speaker series:
Critical Conversations on Emerging Technology

Scientists are now able to map our bodies' DNA with increasing ease and decreasing costs. But what is being done with this information and for whose benefit? How much control do we have over our genetic information and what can we do to protect our privacy?

WHEN: Thursday, April 17, 2014 - 7:30pm

WHERE: Brower Center Theater
2150 Allston Way in Berkeley, CA

SPEAKERS:

Troy Duster, Emeritus Professor,
Sociology, UC Berkeley

Jeremy Gruber, President, Council for Responsible Genetics

In conversation with Milton Reynolds
of Facing History and Ourselves.
